

The World's leading provider of preventative health assessments

Who We Are

Echelon Health was established with the sole purpose of saving lives through the early detection of diseases which, if left undetected, could lead to serious illness or in the worst case, premature death. We have been located in London's Harley Street, the world's leading medical area, for 15 years. During that time, we have enabled hundreds of clients to establish a clear baseline of their health and in many cases have found the early stages of life-threatening diseases, allowing effective treatments to be instituted.

What We Do

We use the most advanced medical imaging techniques and machines available today to carry out the world's most comprehensive health assessments. Each scan we undertake is always the best scan for each disease we are looking for. Each scan is reported on by a specialist radiologist who is an expert in their field. Our most comprehensive health assessment, the Platinum, is reported on by up to 7 radiologists. We then pull everything together in a report and consultation with a leading physician that you can have confidence in.

Safe & Medically Proven

We are committed to the highest clinical standards. Some of our scans require the use of CT machines and we comply with medical requirements whenever undertaking any of our health assessments. We draw upon the expertise of our Medical Advisory Committee, on which sit consultants who are leaders in their respective fields. We are regulated by the Care Quality Commission.

“Clients can be reassured that Echelon are providing not only an expert high quality package but are continually questioning and refining the process. The service they are providing at present is, in my opinion, the best that can be achieved in current practice with existing knowledge.”

We Are Fundamentally Different...

No single scanner is able to detect every disease on its own. MRI is great at detecting prostate cancer or for scanning the cerebral and carotid arteries to look for the early signs of stroke risk or brain tumours. But MRI cannot adequately detect for the early signs of coronary heart disease - furring up of the heart arteries. This, as well as early lung and bowel cancer can only be visualised using a CT (computed tomography) scanner. Finally, some diseases such as thyroid, testicular, and ovarian cancer are best detected using Ultrasound. So, we use all three modalities as they are called, and each scan is then reviewed by a specialist in that field of medicine.

We do not use probabilities or statistics. So many 'health assessments' will carry out a superficial test or check and then tell you that for your age and general state of health, you have perhaps a 25% risk of a heart attack in the next ten years. That approach unfortunately risks either missing something of great concern or alternatively leaving you worried.

That's why our assessments are entirely personal and have no statistical probabilities.

“An exceptional level of service and attention to detail made what could be an intense experience feel very comfortable. The total body evaluation feels like literally no stone is left unturned to ensure a clean bill of health.”

Sir Ben Ainslie

British Sailor & 4 times Olympic Gold Medallist.

“A faultless and highly personalised service; all the staff were welcoming and made the whole process as easy and as comfortable as possible.”

Health and time are amongst our most precious possessions, and for us it is of paramount importance that our clients make the best of their time while having their health assessment. Our luxurious, yet understated suite provides a private and tranquil base to be used in-between tests and scans, to ensure your day at Echelon Health is as relaxing as it is efficient.

A unique setting, carefully curated for both work and relaxation, the Echelon Suite provides the ultimate privacy during your visit. Whether to make important conference calls, indulge in a delicious lunch, or simply find a quiet moment to slip into a robe and truly unwind, the space is yours.

What is more, the versatile layout of the suite allows it to be used either in its large entirety if you are visiting as a couple, or split into two junior suites if you are visiting alone.

Meticulously furnished with pieces by renowned designer David Linley and reminiscent of the 1950s art deco style, the suite encapsulates timeless luxury.

There is no need to leave your suite in a hurry; we invite our clients to make the best of their experience with us and enjoy all the amenities the suite has to offer.

> Suite Amenities

- + 4G USB internet connection
- + A selection of teas
- + Espresso machine with selection of coffees
- + Lounge robe and slippers
- + Safe with digital keypad
- + Complimentary still and sparkling water

Please note that the exclusive use of the suite is offered on a complimentary basis to all our Platinum and Gold clients

01 Platinum

Unsurprisingly, the large majority of our clients opt for the Platinum health assessment because it is so comprehensive and is, we think, the best preventative health assessment available anywhere in the world today.

Taking approximately 6 hours in a single visit to our Harley Street clinic during which time you will have exclusive use of your personal luxury Echelon Suite in which to relax in between scans / tests or catch up on emails, we really do aim to make sure no stone is left unturned. As a result, we are able to say with independent verification that our Platinum Health Assessment can detect for up to 92% of the causes of premature death in men and up to 95% in women.

03 Bespoke

Whilst we believe the Platinum health assessment offers the most comprehensive preventative health assessment available today, we also understand that some clients may wish to focus on areas of their body that are of most concern (perhaps for family history reasons) or alternatively may need to adjust the Platinum health assessment and take a few elements out simply because they have recently had an assessment or scan carried out elsewhere for a specific reason.

In such cases our team would be delighted to design a health assessment that is tailored to your needs.

04 Corporate

Many organisations have some form of health assessment product in place for their senior leaders and staff. However, few add any real value for the individual because most use generalised statistical and probability models to determine an individual's likelihood of having (or developing) various diseases. That is not the same as knowing whether that same individual already has the early and (so far) undetected stages of a potentially life-threatening disease.

Echelon Health has an outstanding track record in designing corporate health assessments for leading companies and so if that is of interest to you, please refer to the corporate page on our website for more detail.
